Key Features of Web site Development

Here are 6 key features of website development:

1. HTML - HTML provides the basic structure and content of web pages through markup tags that define paragraphs, headings, lists, links, and more.

2. CSS - CSS controls the visual styling and layout of web pages. With CSS, developers can format elements like colors, fonts, animations, and page layouts.

3. JavaScript - JavaScript adds interactivity and dynamic functionality to websites. It allows for things like responsive menus, interactive maps, animations, and more.

4. Back-end programming - Server-side languages like PHP, Python, Ruby, and .NET power the back-end of websites. They handle server processes, database interactions, and site logic.

5. Web security - Security is crucial for any web project to protect user data and prevent attacks. Web developers implement measures like encryption, input validation, SQL injection protection, and more to keep sites secure.

6. Responsive web design - Making sites properly display on all devices from desktop to mobile is key. Responsive principles like fluid layouts, flexbox, and media queries allow for this seamless user experience across devices.
